

4th International Pedagogical and Linguistic Conference (ERL IV)

Educational Role of Language - From theory to practice, from practice to theory

17-18 June 2019, University of Craiova (Romania)

The Faculty of Letters of the University of Craiova will host the ERL IV International Conference Educational Role of Language - From theory to practice, from practice to theory in partnership with the University of West London (England), Education Academy of Vytautas Magnus University (Lithuania) and the University of Gdańsk (Poland).

The conference will focus on how language relates to schooling, culture, methodology and personality. These four relationships will be discussed in terms of how they are theoretically determined and how they are manifested in practice throughout the globe.

The conference is also meant to provide grounds for expanding the ERL Network and welcoming new members of the recently established International Association for the Educational Role of Language, about which you can read more at <http://educationalroleoflanguage.org>. Academics, researchers and teachers whose interests combine language and education in its widest sense are invited to participate and share their interdisciplinary contributions, so as to help us better understand how language determines our functioning in the world and how it works in theoretical and practical terms.
