COMPARATIVISM, IDENTITY, COMMUNICATION (CIC2020)

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE (online)
Craiova, 16th -17th October 2020

Call for Papers

By bringing the concepts of “comparativism”, “identity”, “communication” together, the conference will focus on the complex identities interactively engaged in the society “conquered by communication.”

Transmodern globalized communication implies rapid, spectacular, misleading and ambivalent processes: communication can be seen as a means of emancipation of the individual / nations, but also as a means of controlling them. It is necessary, therefore, to rethink “human condition” in the context of interculturalism and “netocracy” and from the point of view of mutual conditioning and interactive feedback.

The opening towards otherness, which accompanies the transgression of the borders of communication, supposes identity awareness. Multicultural cohabitation is possible if individuals become aware of symbols of identity and of their value, if they consciously participate in the intercultural dialogue and operate with flexible concepts and, by all means, if they place themselves under the unifying sign of meaning.

Comparative studies provide new insights into the complex matters of intercultural relations and identity issues, but they also provide food for thought for the field of communication studies. While focusing on general and comparative literature, it is not our intention, though, to limit the scope of the conference to this area. We envisage comparison as an all-encompassing scientific method, which might apply to linguistics, anthropology, cultural studies etc.

The interdisciplinary perspective and the generous thematic spectrum will, hopefully, allow the rethinking of the issues mentioned above.

Thematic areas:

1. Comparativism: influence, reception, intertextuality, palimpsestic rewriting, comparative poetics, comparative imagology, inter-aesthetic and inter-semiotic relations; comparison between languages and linguistic phenomena.
2. Pragmasemantic aspects of communication: emotive meaning, argumentative roles, speech acts, implicit meaning, linguistic / semantic context and extralinguistic or situational context.
3. The rhetorical aspects of communication: tropes, figures of thought, sophisms; political, journalistic, didactic discourse.
4. New media / communication technologies and corresponding anthropological mutations: cyber-culture and cyberspace, virtual communities, “secondary” orality, re-reading of texts in different contexts.
5. Identity reconstruction and deconstruction: discourse on identity and cultural diversity; post-communist transition and negotiation of identity; “the writing” of the multicultural self in the media; otherness and the dynamics of communicative relations.
6. Postmodern culture: hybridization, polyphony, interculturality etc.

Interdisciplinary perspectives: communication theory, comparativism, cognitive linguistics / poetics, discourse analysis, gender studies, imagology, literary studies, philosophy, pragmatics, semiotics.
